

This month, we've been busy preparing for our trip to America, and making plans for when we get there. For Arisa and I, we will be moving to live in the U.S. for a few years to continue our education; to learn physical therapy and attend Bible college- something we feel is the next step in God's plan for our lives. Unfortunately, Mew was unable to get a visa, which disappointed all of us, and made me extremely sad. Our dad will be taking us in September, and returning to Thailand two months later. Even though some plans have changed, and he will not be in America for as long as he had intended to, we will make the best out of the situation and try to go to as many places possible.

Although short, we see this trip as an opportunity to raise awareness of God's ministry in Thailand- the Home of Hope children's home, and Grace Christian School. We are so excited for the many chances we'll get to meet new people and build relationships with them in the U.S.

Everywhere we go, I believe that people can see God's light in us by the love that we have for one another. A few Sundays ago at church, a nice lady who is a school teacher here asked us to share the gospel and pray with her friend, who was in the last stages of cancer. Our family and all of the church people drove out to the woman's home and did just that. It was a great opportunity not only to share Jesus with the woman, but to also encourage the school teacher's faith as well. She said she was afraid and a little bit shy when it came to telling people about what she believed, to which we told her that she could lay hands on her friend and pray for healing also. Praise God that we can share our faith wherever we go.

Praying for the school teacher and her husband.

Praying for the woman in the last stage of cancer.

Our brothers and sisters in Christ at our little church here are such a blessing to us. They truly are born again believers with the Love of God in them. They have helped us so much in preparing to leave, even going out of their way to look after our home and pets while we're gone. This is how the body of Christ should be; we should be able to trust one another and help each other whenever any member is in need.

Acts 2:44-47 says,

Now all who believed were together, and had all things in common, and sold their possessions and goods, and divided them among all, as anyone had need. So continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, they ate their food with gladness and simplicity of heart, praising God and having favor with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily those who were being saved.

NKJV

Thank you to our partners who continue to support us! If you would like to contribute to our trip, you may do so here:

Partnership
&
GIVING

We will be going to encouraging believers, and give people the opportunity to partner with our ministry. God has given us an amazing vision for Thailand, which I believe we will see come to pass soon. Please feel free to contact us!

If you would like to give towards my and Arisa's college, you may do so here:

