"Taking the gospel where it has never gone before"

The world is coming to an end! This might well be a typical headline in the news these days, at least among many Christians who seem to be so preoccupied with world events. I know Jesus spoke about discerning the time, but was He telling us to be so preoccupied with the world events that we forget why we are here? I know for our family, we are so thankful for the life to which God has called us. We live a very simple life, we don't have television or read the news paper; we just focus on these precious children that the Lord has allowed us to rescue and reaching out to others that have never heard the gospel.

When I go on-line to check my emails, I occasionally read a headline in the news; if it's not about some star and their relationships, it's about some terrible thing going on in the world. There is no "good news" in the news. I try to avoid focusing on all those terrible stories and all the rhetoric going on about the politics of world governments. If I did allow myself to focus on all that, it would be easy to get distracted, upset and worried.

How could we possibly go forward, believing God for the great things to come that He has shown us, if we are so focused on the storms going on all around us?

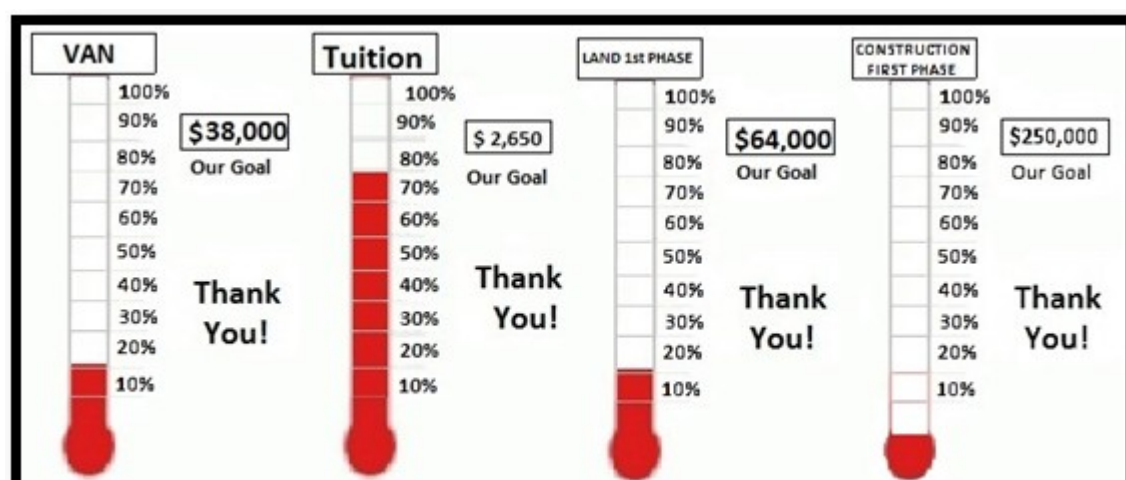

If you have not partnered with us already, would you join us in reaching the lost with the gospel? Help us rescue abandoned and orphaned children, raise them up knowing the Love of God. They are the future, they will be an army of mighty men and women of faith that will spread the gospel all over this country and then the world.

Our children are doing great. David and Tunwah are amazing, they have memorized nearly twenty scriptures in English and Thai language and they can explain the meaning. Their ability to learn new things and then retain so much information is truly amazing. Nadia and Ann, of course have only been with us for 8 months and are not yet at the same level as the boys, but they are learning every day and are doing great. Nadia's speech is becoming more clear and she is gaining confidence. They are all learning the word of God and they love to praise and worship the Lord.

Foundation update:

After several attempts by the lawyer's office to get our constitution translated properly and with Mew's help, we finally have it. We just received the last of the paper work to be signed by all the board members. We have mailed all the signed documents back to the lawyer and should be hearing soon that all is approved. I really believe having this foundation completed will open many doors for provision and recognition for us in this area of the country as a reputable growing ministry.

Fund raising update:

We still have many needs, and we are trusting God for everything. If you would like to be a part of what we are doing, please specify what exactly you would like to contribute toward when you give. We are so thankful for all our faithful partners. Together, we are caring for these precious children and spreading the gospel.

Bless you,
The DeVine Family
